Academic Integrity and Cheating Policy

Academic integrity is a fundamental value of our educational community. As such, all students are expected to uphold the highest standards of honesty and integrity in their academic work. Cheating, plagiarism, and any other forms of academic dishonesty are strictly prohibited and will not be tolerated.

Definition of Cheating: Cheating includes, but is not limited to:

- Using unauthorized materials or devices
- Copying from another student or all
- Collaborating on assignments or exa
- Submitting work that is not your own
- Falsifying data, research, or citations

Consequences of Cheating: Any student found guilty of cheating will face disciplinary actions, which may include:

- Receiving a zero on the affected assignment
- A reduction in the final course grade
- Referral to the academic integrity committee for suspension or expulsion from the institution

Reporting Cheating: Students are encouraged to report suspected cheating to their instructor or the academic integrity office. All reports will be investigated thoroughly.

By enrolling in this course, you agree to uphold the academic integrity of our academic community.

Phase 1 (H1)

- Beta release: Library staff can upload files
- Import PDF, Word, .txt files
- Paste references to create list
- Multi-lingual support

Phase 2 (H2)

- Instructors can upload files
- Workflow to manage non-linked items
- Paste references to add to existing sections

The screenshot shows the 'Manage links to library' page in the ExLibris Leganto interface. The page is titled 'The library is reviewing your list. Your list is not yet visible to students. To publish or send additional changes, click'. It features a search bar with the text 'Nursing diagnosis handbook : an evidence-based guide to planning care'. Below the search bar, there are search results for books. The first result is 'Nursing diagnosis handbook : an evidence-based guide to planning care' by Betty J. Ackley, Gail B. Ladwig, and Mary Beth Flynn Makic. Other results include 'How to stop worrying and start living', 'Your heart in the sea', 'The psychology of money', 'Twisted love', and 'An Anthology of Intriguing Animals (DK Children's Anthologies)'. A 'Link' button is visible next to the first result. A grey box with the text 'Early mockup' is overlaid on the bottom right of the screenshot.

ALETHEA COACHBeta

Great start! Let's dig a bit deeper into the text to flesh out this idea. In the highlight 'Thus, Hegel explains the need...', Hegel discusses the correspondence between musical pulse and the inner life of the subject. How does this idea of a regular beat or pulse in music help illustrate the connection between music and the subject's inner time?

the identity of the subject is constructed through a constant collection of a series of "nows" that are made into the sequence out of which the subject synthesizes its identity

Excellent! That's a very insightful explanation. How about the highlight 'Hegel, however, points...'Can you explain what it means about music's existence in time and its preservation within the subjective consciousness? How does this fit into the idea of subjective inner time?

ALETHEA COACH

Let's consider the DABUS case from your highlights. How do the inventions created by the AI robot DABUS relate to the issue of granting intellectual property rights?

The DABUS AI was able to create two new products therefore arising the question is it the creators of DABUS's right to patent those ideas/products or is it the AI's product and therefore the non living entities property?

Exactly, the DABUS case raises important questions about intellectual property rights for AI-generated inventions. Now, let's consider the U.S. Patent Office's stance on this issue. How has the USPTO sought public input on AI's impact on patents?

Done

puts it, "does not have to be theorized away; the intersection of consumerism and techno-culture has already done the job" (1998, 114). All that was solid has melted into air. Posthumanism has finally arrived, and theory, like "Man" "himself," no longer has a place. I am not quite ready to be seduced by such an approach. It is, I think, too easy, too complacent, too premature, and I want to stress the importance of theory—above all, poststructuralist theory—in the posthumanist landscape. Posthumanism, I want to suggest, needs theory, needs theorizing, needs above all to reconsider the untimely celebration of the absolute end of "Man." What Jacques Derrida calls the "apocalyptic tone" I should be toned down a little for, as Nietzsche once pointed out, it is remarkably difficult to cut off the humanist head through which we (continue to) behold all things' (1996, [5]). While I am not for one moment interested in preserving humanism, keeping its head firmly on its shoulders, I do think that it is worth remembering the tale of the Lernaean hydra (the mythical beast that, of course, remembers itself). "The hydra always increased." Quite the opposite, Fitzpatrick'.

Accessibility and inclusion are important to Ex Libris and a key part of our ongoing commitment to the customer community. To ensure that our software is accessible to all our users, we work through various channels — programming and testing techniques, collaboration with customers, and external auditing.

Throughout the development process, we roll out new features with accessibility being part of the design. Leganto undergoes annual auditing by an external consulting company, most recently Deque Systems, and our accessibility roadmap addresses their rejects and recommendations. Additionally, we receive accessibility feedback from customers via support tickets. Reported issues are handled on an ongoing basis and prioritized based on the severity and the functionality impacted. Leganto monthly releases regularly include development in support of accessibility.

Please review the report of the most recent audit conducted by Deque Systems, based on VPAT version 2.4. This audit report refers to the July 2024 Leganto release (new UI). While we develop new features in accordance with accessibility standards, as outlined above, the audit report does not cover developments added after this date.

The FAQs below are reviewed and updated once a year, following the annual accessibility audit. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact us via a support ticket (for current customers) or the feedback button at the bottom of this page.
